FIGHTING AT HOMESTEAD.

Pinkerton Detectives Fire on the Strikers Who Return the Volley With Interest.

Three Battles Fought---Pinkerton's Men in a Trap, Hoist a Flag of Truce.

Thirty-Eight Men Killed----10,000 Men Join Together to Resist Pinkerton's Forces.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., July 6.—Governor Pattison received a telegram from the chairman of the committee of strikers at the Carnegie Steel Works at Homestead, Pa., early this morning, urging him to come to the scene of action at once and personally investigate the situation. The request was positive and Governor Pattison lost no time in putting himself in connection with Attorney-General Hensel. The strikers claim the manager of the mills had acted in a manner contrary to the laws of Pennsylvania, and they wished it understood that legal redress would be sought for eagerly and persistently. A half dozen telegrams passed between the chief of the executive and his Attorney-General, and in the end Governor Pattison telephoned to the station and asked that the fast express, which was about to start, be held until he could board it. On the way to the depot Governor Pattison to a personal friend said the situation was of such gravity as to require his immediate and personal attention. Attorney-General Hensel, who was in Philadelphia, was directed by the Governor to meet him in Philadelphia in time to take the first train to Harrisburg.

HOMESTEAD, July 6.—Three hundred Pinkerton detectives have just attempted to land at the steel works and fired on the guard. One hundred shots were exchanged and the Pinkertons were repulsed.

The first man to disembark advanced with a Winchester rifle. As he stepped off a piece was discharged. This was the signal for a general exchange of shots on both sides. A second battle occurred a few minutes ago. The captain of the steamer which carried the Pinkertons was shot dead.

PITTSBURG, July 6, 9:30 a.m.—Four Homestead iron workers have just arrived and say there are now five dead on each side and several Pinkertons fell overboard and are believed to be drowned. It is alleged that one of four men is here to secure dynamite with which to blow the Pinkerton steamer out of the river. A morning paper bulletins the following: Homestead, 9 a.m.—The iron workers have just turned a cannon on the Pinkertons' boat and should they attempt a landing the cannon will be discharged at short range.

Sheriff McLeary was interviewed at 3 o'clock this morning and denied that the Pinkerton boat went to Homestead by his authority. Word has just reached here that the great fence about the works at Homestead has been set on fire. The cause of the second battle was an attempt to land the barges.

HOMESTEAD, July 6.—The first shot of the engagement came from the Pinkerton barge. It was aimed at a big Hungarian who stood at the water's edge. The bullet went wide of the human target, but was the signal to the Pinkerton men to begin and for a few minutes they continued to fire. The first man hit was Martin Merry, a heater, who fell face downwards. A Hungarian stooped over Merry's prostrate body, and when raising him staggered and fell by the side of his comrade. This bloody battle roused the crowd and with a cheer half a dozen rushed forward and picked up the bodies and carried them behind the trestle. Merry and the Hungarian were examined by Dr. Purman, who said that both will probably die.

10 a.m.—The strikers have poured oil on the river above the steamer and the Pinkerton barges and ignited the oil. The boat is retreating. Hemmed in on all sides, the Pinkerton men appeared to be doomed. The steamboat which towed the barges has disappeared. The cannon on shore is being fired every few minutes with terrible effect.

PITTSBURG, July 5, 4:45, a.m.—Three hundred Pinkerton men, arrived at Homestead. Eight thousand Carnegie men saw them approach and broke through the ramparts of Fort Frick and a desperate fight is going on now. At 4:50 the first exchange of shots between Pinkerton's men and the strikers took place. Five Pinkerton men fell dead and two strikers were wounded. About 10 o'clock a raft of logs and barrels was fired and sent floating down the stream towards the Pinkerton barges, and set them on fire. Pinkerton's men at once withdrew from the scene and are now on the way back to Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, July 6.—A review of the reports from Homestead show there were practically two conflicts, the first at dawn when the Pinkerton barges attempted the first landing, and the second shortly before 8 o'clock when another attempt was made to get Pinkerton's men into the works. The second scrimmage lasted in a more or less desultory fashion for two hours. The reports as to the casulties are conflicting, but it appears thus far that four workmen are dead — Mike Merry, Henry Strengle, John Wallace and Wm. Foy. The number wounded on the workers side it is impossible to estimate, as many doubtless were spirited away by friends. Among the wounded is Captain Ritter, a prominent citizen, thigh shattered. When the Pinkerton barge dropped down the stream the five injured, including Capt. Heinds, of New York, their commander, were taken to Port Perry, a station of the Baltimore & Ohio Railway, and are now in the Homœpathic Hospital. Heinds says none of his men had been killed or drowned as far as he knew, but one, Laline, was shot in the head and is dying in the hospital. Homestead is besieged, and Vice-President Carney, of the Amalgamated Association, says by the afternoon 3000 men will be fully armed. Sheriff McLeary telegraphed Gov. Pattison, at Harrisburg, of the gravity of the situation and asked instructions form the Governor. The Governor replied that the local authorities must exhaust every means to preserve the peace. At 11:45 it is reported Pinkerton barges are still on the scene and the boat which brought away the injured has gone back to them. A conference was to have been held this afternoon, but at 12 o'clock it is reported that chairman Frick, of the Carnegie Company, refuses to again meet the workmen.

Answering Governor Pattison's reply to his first message, Sheriff McLeary sent another briefly describing the conflict and saying he had no means at command to meet the emergency, that a large force was required and delay would result in further bloodshed and destruction of property. The sheriff closes by urging instant action by the Governor.

1:20 p.m.—The Times posts a bulletin that 38 men have been killed.

HOMESTEAD, 2:10 p.m.—The Pinkerton men have run up a flag of truce on their barges, but it is not recognized by the men on shore.

PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—Adjutant-General Greenleaf, of the State National Guards, says troops are ready for action at a moment's notice if orders are received.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Representative Cannimetti, of California, introduced a resolution for the committee to investigate the Homestead strike.

PITTSBURG, July 6.—It is reported from Homestead that at 11:30 the tug Little Bill came down the river as if to tow barges away. She carried armed men. This caused a third conflict and for 10 minutes a rapid fusilade was exchanged between the tug, barges and men on shore. Several on the boat were wounded and the tug passed down the river leaving the barges in an uncomfortable position.

When it became known this afternoon that the sheriff and a posse were en route, men shook their heads. Burgess McClusky said if the deputies attempt to follow Pinkerton tactics it was hard to tell what the result will be. The available number of men now at the command of the strikers is 10,000, with as many more in readiness. A gentleman said to-day, "The action of the mill owners looks like a scheme to precipitate a battle. The attempt to reach the works by the river is a bold effort to lead the idle workmen to fight, and a bloody conflict, the worst since the railway riots of 1888, is only just begun."

2:40 p.m.—An effort to fire the barges by burning oil has been abandoned and the men at the pump house at the railroad are confining themselves to firing cannon and throwing bombs at the barges. The Pinkerton men are keeping concealed below the sides of the barge. It is reported that 2000 hands of the Republic Iron Works, who are on a picnic to-day, will join the men at the Steel Works to-night.

THE QUEEN'S WREATH

Laid on Mr. Robson's Coffin—Remains Leave Liverpool To-Morrow.

LONDON, July 6.—The remains of Hon. John Robson, late premier of British Columbia, left London to-day. The Queen sent a wreath to be placed on the coffin. The remains will leave Liverpool to-morrow for Quebec, accompanied by Mrs. Robson, widow of the deceased premier. The funeral services, conducted at St. Margaret's church yesterday by Archdeacon Farrar, is remarked as another sign of England's concern in the joys and sorrows of her colonies, as St. Margaret's is the parish church of the House of Commons.

The Presidential Holiday.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Everything is in readiness for the departure of President and Mrs. Harrison for Loon Lake, in the Adirondacks, and they will leave either this evening or to-morrow. A cottage has been taken for the entire summer. President Harrison will return at the end of the week, but Mrs. Harrison will remain in the mountains until she has regained her health and strength. Mrs. McKee and her children are at Marblehead, Mass.

THE COMPLEXION CHANGES.

The Gains and Losses Balance—Important Seats Captured by Each Side.

Notable Unionists Defeated—The Gladstonian Rejected by Edinburgh West.

LONDON, July 6.—The elections did not go as well for the Liberals yesterday. They had counted on making considerable gains in the London boroughs, but the changes thought to have been foreshadowed by the turnover in the County Council elections did not come, and the gains and losses were equalized. Each side gained seven and lost seven in the contests yesterday, leaving the two parties exactly as they were on Monday night, the Liberals having made a net gain of eight seats. So far 160 elections have come off, the Liberals taking 63 seats, the Tories 89, and the Liberal-Unionists 8. The Gladstonians are much disappointed over yesterday's results, and realize that they must do very much better among the counties than among the boroughs in order to have any chance of winning. Three notable defeats among the Unionists yesterday were those of the Marquis of Lorne in Bradford, Richard Chamberlain in West Islington, and Henry M. Stanley in North Lambeth. The latter two seats are gains for the Liberals. Mrs. Chamberlain and Mrs. Stanley worked with great energy in aid of their husbands' candidature, and both are bitterly disappointed over their defeats. The Marquis of Lorne's rejection in Bradford also caused some disappointment to the Princess Louise and to other members of the royal family. Yesterday's results were as follows:

Bradford, Central Division—Rt. Hon. G. Shaw-Lefevre, Liberal, re-elected, defeating the Marquis of Lorne.

Bedford—Samuel Whitebread, Liberal, was re-elected by 1859 votes to 1732 for W. Guy Pym, Conservative.

Barrow-in-Furness—B. W. Cayser, Conservative, 3331; J. A. Duncan, Liberal, 2890. Mr. Duncan was the sitting member and this is a Liberal loss. Barrow-in-Furness, however, is strongly Conservative, and the Liberal, Mr. Duncan, was elected when there were three tickets in the field.

Bristol, North division—C. Townsend, Liberal, elected, 4409; Lewis Fry, Liberal-Unionist, 4064. This is a Liberal gain

Islington, South—Sir A. K. Rollit, Conservative, re-elected, 3195; M. M. Digby, Liberal, 2873.

Both were defeated, Parker receiving 1771 votes, and Woolen 907. This is a signal defeat for the Liberals, as Perth heretofore has always been represented by a Liberal in Parliament. Mr. Charles Stewart Parker sat for Perth from 1887 until now.

St. Helens—Henry Seton-Karr, Conservative, re-elected, 4258; W. R. Kennedy, 4199.

Wolverhampton, West Division—Sir A. Hickman, Conservative, 4772; Sir W. Plowden, Liberal, received 3676. This This another loss for the Liberals. The vote in 1886 was: Plowden, 3705, Hickman, 3583.

MORE RETURNS.

LONDON, July 6.—Futher election returns to-day show the return without opposition of two Liberals, two anti-Parnellites, one Conservative and one labor candidate. In the following additional districts contests resulted:

Edinburgh, west division—Lord Wolmer, Liberal-Unionist, elected over Thomas Buchanan, Liberal. This is a serious reverse for the latter, who was converted to Home Rule in 1888 after which his constituents endorsed his changed views, though he only had a small majority, 46. The Liberals thus lose a valuable Scottish member.

Edinburgh, central division—McEwan, Liberal, re-elected over the Liberal-Unionist and labor candidates.

The following are elected without opposition.

Armagh, north division, Col. Sanderson, Irish Conservative, re-elected; Clare, east division, Capt. Donnellan, Nationalist; Antrim, south division, W.

PRODDING THE GOVERNMENT.

Mr. Gordon Calls the Ministers' Attention to Some British Columbia Needs.

From Our Own Correspondent.

OTTAWA, June 28.—Some of the British Columbia estimates were put through the house last evening. Mr. Gordon, who has not been very strong for some time past, but who is fast recovering, was able to be present, and discussed the various items. On the item of repairs to buoys he said: "I would like to call the attention of the Government to the importance of lighting the harbor of Nanaimo in British Columbia. The trade at that port has become so great that I think the Minister will acknowledge that this subject deserves his attention. So far back as 1872, when Sir Hector Langevin visited that province, he reported the necessity of lighting the entrance to that harbor. At one time the output of coal at that port was 29,843 tons. Up to the present time, although many efforts have been made to induce the Government to build a lighthouse there, it has been deemed more important to light other points leading to other ports. Now in order to show the increase of shipping at that port which has taken place since Sir Hector Langevin recognized the importance of lighting the harbor at Nanaimo, I will read statistics." He did so, giving a statement of the number, tonnage and crews of vessels which arrived and departed from the port of Nanaimo, British Columbia, during the year ending 30th June, 1891. Proceeding he said: "The 553 vessels that cleared from the port of Nanaimo during that year conveyed to foreign countries 641,526 tons weight of the products of that part of Vancouver Island district, valued at $2,506,859. The duties collected during the same period were $58,747.10. The sick mariners' dues collected during the same period were $3,323.78, being $497.88 more than all the other ports in the province, and was only exceeded in Nova Scotia at the port of Halifax, in New Brunswick at the port of St. John, in Quebec at the ports of Montreal and Quebec, and was over seven times greater than all the sick mariners' dues collected in Prince Edward Island. Now, for every ton of coal carried from that port there is so much wealth added to the Dominion through the industry and labor that are involved. I am sure the Government will not disregard the claims of British Columbia to public works of this nature while they are constructing these works on the Atlantic coast and on the lakes where the tonnage is nothing compared with the tonnage I have mentioned. I can think of no other reason which the Government can urge to excuse their palpable neglect, than the fact that we are at so great a distance from the central government, and that our representation in this House is so small. I wish the minister who presides over that department were here, because it is with him especially that I have a bone to pick in this matter. I would like the Government, at least, to place two small lights as experiments in that harbor next year. If they will inform themselves of the facts they will recognize the importance of guarding against collisions and giving facilities to steamers entering that port to load and discharge their cargoes as fast as possible."

MR. FOSTER REPLIES.

Mr. Foster—The department is substituting buoys at the different stations. These are more modern and have proved useful, and experiments are being conducted with them at different stations. As regards the remarks of the hon. member for Vancouver (Mr. Gordon), the only way of giving warning is by lights and automatic buoys, and every care will be taken to have the buoys kept as permanently as possible. They will break away at times, but the department will exercise more supervision over them and give them more frequent overhauling. I do not think that newspaper advertising will help us much, as mariners will not see the newspapers. These notices are posted up in the custom houses and are seen by mariners when they come on shore.

Mr. Gordon—It is all very well to experiment with these buoy lights. They were of advantage to shipping entering the harbor; but one was fully a mile within the harbor entrance. No vessel approaching Nanaimo harbor from Fairway or Middle Channel could see either of those lights until the vessel got abreast of the harbor. It was essential to have a lighthouse erected on the point, in order to lead vessels safely into the entrance. Such a lighthouse would not cost more than $2000 or $3000, and I hope the Minister will take that sum this year out of the aggregate vote. I would like to ask the acting minister to give a promise that he will take something out of the aggregate vote for a small lighthouse in Nanaimo harbor which is badly needed there. Anyone who is acquainted with the amount of shipping in that place, or who has visited the harbor, will agree that this place is badly lighted.

FISHERY OVERSEERS.

On the item of fishery overseers, etc., British Columbia, $10,000,

Mr. Gordon—I wish to call the attention of the Government to the fact that all the fishery guardians of Vancouver Island, outside of the district of Vancouver, have been dismissed, and the latest report I have had with reference to the matter is that one has been reappointed. If the fishery guardians have been dismissed I would like to ask why should not the Government as well dismiss the fishery guardians of the other provinces, because it is just as essential to protect the fisheries in British Columbia as in any other part of the Dominion. There are eight or ten valuable fish rivers in Vancouver Island, and twenty or thirty fine lakes where fish are plentiful, but where, through over fishing, or fishing out of season, they are now becoming scarce. I call the attention of the Government to this fact, that they may all know what has occurred, and that they may rectify what has been done, and have guardians appointed to look after the fishery there at the proper season.

Mr. Foster—There is an increase in this vote for British Columbia, and that is no doubt intended to provide proper inspectors and overseers. I understand that the inspector for British Columbia has instructions to employ what help is necessary in order to protect these rivers. I will also call the attention of the Acting Minister to what the hon. gentleman has stated.

LOBSTER HATCHERIES.

Mr. Gordon—I would like to enquire of the Minister whether it is proposed to establish a lobster hatchery in British Columbia. I may remark that the late Mr. Mowat was very enthusiastic in his endeavors to induce the Government to establish a lobster hatchery in that province, and, during his lifetime, he reported strongly in favor of it. At one time an assurance was given us that as soon as the test then being made by the American Government in Washington Territory had settled the question of the cultivation of the lobster, this Government would take some steps in that direction. I am informed that the test on the American side has proved a perfect success, and that the lobsters are being developed very rapidly. I would like to have some assurance from the Government on this point, because we like variety in our fish.

Mr. Foster—The hon. gentleman will remember that on two occasions we attempted to transport the lobster across the country to British Columbia, but in those instances the lobster unfortunately did not survive the journey. The United States had several experiences of the same kind. I have not followed the subject closely, and I do not know whether the late experiments in the United States have succeeded or not. If they do succeed, and it is better we should wait the result of their experiment, the Minister will have lobsters planted on the coast of British Columbia, provided the conditions are equal, and I suppose they will be, but during the present year nothing will be done.

FISHERY PROTECTION.

Mr. Gordon—Last year the inspector of fisheries of British Columbia was directed to proceed to Sproat's Island on the west coast of Vancouver Island to examine the approach to that lake of the Sumas river, with a view of facilitating the passage of fish to that lake as a spawning ground. The fish have great trouble in getting over the falls except when the water is very high. The inspector reported favorably on the lake, and suggested that certain improvements should be made. He estimated the cost of connecting Sproat's lake with Sumas river at $750, and of an approach to Long lake at about $1,500. This report was forwarded to me by the department, and I recommended that the connection with Sproat's lake should be made this year, leaving the connection with the great central lake for some future time. Has anything been done with regard to that?

Mr. Foster—I have noted the inquiry, and the Deputy Minister will see about it. He does not recollect at present whether anything was done or not.

SLABTOWN.

Miss Willard and the Gold Cure.

CHICAGO, July 5.—Both Miss Frances Willard and the leading members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union are considerably annoyed by the covert attacks that are being made upon that well known temperance advocate by some of those interested in the Keeley cure on account of the fact that she has so far refrained from openly announcing herself as a champion and indorser of the Dwight method. Efforts have been made to show that she is opposed to the gold cure, but these she has controverted by proving in black and white that she was a friend and supporter of the Keeley treatment long before a general knowledge of it had been obtained through the country. The Keeleyites demand, however, that the treatment should be publicly endorsed and commended through the Union Signal, the official organ of the W.C.T.U. Miss Willard has so far made no response to this demand, but those associated with that publication do not hesitate to say that she would hardly be justified in advertising and booming the Dwight Institute so long as it is purely a money-making concern, and so operated as to bring its promoters over a million dollars profits a year. Just as as soon as the formula is communicated to the staffs of the various hospitals in the country or the treatment placed within the reach of the poorest and most demoralized drunkards of the land, just so soon, they say, will it receive all the countenance and support the association can give it. The union, it is contended, is seeking to save victims of intemperance and to put temptation without their reach, but, unlike the originators of the Dwight method, they are so engaged as a labor of love, and doing that labor without money and without price.

Castoria is recommended by physicians for children teething. It is a purely vegetable preparation, its ingredients are published around each bottle. It is pleasant to the taste and absolutely harmless. It relieves constipation, regulates the bowels, quiets pain, cures diarrhœa and wind colic, allays feverishness, destroys worms, and prevents convulsions, soothes the child and gives it refreshing and natural sleep. Castoria is the children's panacea—the mothers' friend 35 doses, 35 cents.

FOOLING THE GUARDS.

The Ruse Adopted by Some Yankee Prisoners to Conceal the Escape of Their Comrades

"Of all my war experience," said the old colonel, as he set down his glass and settled back in his chair, "I think my imprisonment was the worst, but even that had some bright lights to contrast with its many black shadows. One of the brightest of the former was the immediate sequel to the escape from the famous tunnel out of Libby. Let me see; yes, that was in early February, 1864.

"No, I must resist the temptation to describe the tunnel and the escape, for to do so would take all night. I had no hand in the digging nor did I escape; not that I was not more than eager to do both, but an old and still open wound incapacitated me for such service.

"It was a night of intense anxiety to the hundreds who knew that they must remain back as well as to the other hundreds who were eager to crawl out through that subterranean passage to freedom.

"During the long hours of that cold, black night I stood at a barred window of the upper east room watching my comrades as they came up from the hole behind the protecting fence and made their way toward the canal, where a lamp that exposed them to the view of the drowsy guards burned.

"I was still standing there when daylight came, and the tramping of the guards coming up to count the prisoners, as was their early morning custom, aroused me to a sense of my situation.

"It may be well to explain here that the method of roll call adopted by Turner, the commandant of Libby, was to drive all the prisoners into the upper east room, or upper Potomac room, as it was most often called, because the officers confined there were captured in Virginia. Through a door, barred up at other times, the men were counted into the upper middle or upper Chickamauga room, after which and till 9 o'clock at night they had the freedom of the two upper floors of the wretched old building.

"When free, the 1,200 men literally swarmed in the six rooms in which they slept and lived, and so you can form some idea of how densely we were packed into that one room, when hurried in at the point of the bayonet for roll call.

"At the door, through which we passed, stood 'Little Ross,' Turner's clerk, who kept the tally of the men as they passed through, and subsequently reported the number present or 'unaccounted for' to the commandant.

"There were glassless skylights through the roof over the upper west and upper east rooms, which were used by the man who had charge of the Confederate flag that floated from the ridgepole every day, but which did not greatly annoy us, as it was out of sight.

"Of course in order to give our comrades who had escaped the night before a good start, we were eager to throw the prison officials off the scent; but how to do so was a question that puzzled us greatly. And then we labored under the disadvantage of not being able to tell how many got out, nor had we time to arrange a plan that had in it the promise of success, so we determined to wait for Little Ross' report.

"In counting out the prisoners Ross kept the familiar form of tally, making four strokes and crossing with another stroke for every five. But this morning, when he came to reckon up his fives, he was paralyzed and his hair stood on end, for they were short by twenty-two—that is, they indicated 110 Yankees 'missing and unaccounted for.'

"In the volcanic excitement of the moment, Ross shot out an oath and shouted: 'Ger-rait Andrew Jackson! A hundred and ten Yankees short!' This gave us the cue which was subsequently followed up in a most remarkable way.

"It would seem that Ross hastened down to Turner and told him that there were 110 prisoners missing. Turner seized the tally sheet and hurriedly glanced it over. He saw, or imagined he saw, the source of the error. 'Why,' he exclaimed, 'you've simply lost the slip or forgot to tally twenty-two times. Can't you see that the missing amount is divisible by five?'

"Ross saw it as well as Turner, but they did not rest satisfied with his explanation. Another count was decided on, and once more the men were driven into the upper Potomac room.

"By this time we had decided on our plan. In our rags and pallor any two of the prisoners of about the same age might have passed for twins, so that there was but little chance of their being detected in the bold scheme for repeating that was adopted. One hundred and ten men, after being counted, were to hurry into the upper west room, climb up to the roof, crawl along, drop into the Potomac room and be counted over again till the missing number was made up.

"Unfortunately for the perfect success of this stratagem the counting began before we had time to complete the detail of our men, but I know there was a strong determination on the part of every man able to climb to make good the deficiency.

"Well, the count went on. It was the longest count ever made up to date in old Libby. The fact is the boys were overdoing it, for when Ross came to make up his tally next time, instead of having 110 men short there were just 137 men too many.

"If the prison had been suddenly emptied Turner could not have been more astounded. For the first time I saw an unusual light in his fishy gray eyes. It had been his habit to search every prisoner as he came in, and so he was quite justified in the assertion 'By ——! 110 Yankees might get out without my knowing it, but 137 couldn't come in without my being aware of the fact!'

"To make sure, extra guards were called in; two men were detailed to tally, and Turner himself remained at the opening to make sure that the work was well done.

"By this time the spirit of the occasion fitted the boys, and they braced themselves to give the Johnnies a surprise that would be a climax in its way—and they succeeded.

"The third count showed 241 Yankees too many, and Turner and the guards were struck dumb. Other means to ascertain the truth must be at once adopted. More officers came up, bringing with them more guards.

"The prisoners were driven down to the ground floor, and counted up the steps one at a time.

"Turner and all his friends were keeping tally. The last man was counted. The tallies were added up and compared. They agreed with each other, as they did with the first tally made by Ross. One hundred and ten men had left Libby for liberty and Richmond, for 'God's land,' as we called the north."

A Black Man's Generosity.

A southern lady, whose family was impoverished by the war, but who through noble effort has won wealth since then, tells the following story:

"I was living in Charleston with my two children when General Hardee was forced to evacuate, and you may well believe the richest of us was poor indeed. The Federal troops entered at once, and if it had not been for this we would have been in a state of absolute starvation.

"One day as I was passing along the street I saw an old black man seated in a doorway begging, with his hat in his hand. Stopping, I recognized him as the faithful servant of a friend of mine, whom I had known since my childhood. Touched by the sight, I searched in my purse and finding a small silver coin, which I had carried since the breaking out of the war, I bent over and dropped it into his hat.

"The old man looked quickly up, and said tremulously, 'God bress you, Miss Em'ly, an bress all dem ez you loves.'

"About a week after this, while I was at work trying to mend the children's clothes, I looked out the window and saw old Uncle Phil hobbling up the walk. He came and stood before me in silence with his hat in one hand and something rolled up in a faded bandanna in the other.

"'Good day, Uncle Phil,' I said; 'how are you?'

"'I ain't so very peert, Miss Em'ly,' he groaned.

"'Then go back to the kitchen; so long as there is anything left there you are welcome to it,' I said.

"'T'anks, missy,' he said, 'but I ain't hungry.'

"'I am glad to hear that,' I responded.

"'An I ain't so pore,' he added.

"I expressed my pleasure at this, but it was evident there was something on the old man's mind which he was at a loss to explain, so I thought I would help him by asking:

"'Is there anything I can do for you, Uncle Phil?'

"'T'anks, Miss Em'ly; yaas, dar is,' he said.

"'What is it?'

"Before replying he knelt down at my feet and began to untie the many knots in the bandanna. I watched him carefully, while not seeming to do so, till he had brought to light a lot of fractional currency, greenbacks and other money, the result of his begging. Pointing to the pile he said:

"'Miss Em'ly, a w'ite sojer counted dat ar money fo' me dis yar mawnin, and he done tole me dat it all comes to twenty-eight dollar and fifteen cent. De fifteen cent I got use fo', but I don't keer fo' de rest'——

"'Why not, Uncle Phil?' I asked.

"'Kaze, missy, I'd a heap sight rudder you'd take it twel de times gits bettah fo' yous and yourn. I ken skrimmidge an git lots moah from de sojers, an ef so be ye'd take it, I'd feel a heap sight moah cumf'able.'

"The old man's thoughtfulness touched my heart, and I am not ashamed to say there were tears in my voice as I gave him my hand. I told him, what was true, that we had been very poor, but that now our wants were supplied, and that I did not think there was any danger of the future.

"A short time after this Uncle Phil died, and it was my privilege to see that the old man was decently buried."

An Ingenious Music Lesson.

It is doubtful if the bagpipes is a musical instrument to any one not a Highland Scotchman, but I once heard of a lesson given by a teacher of the bagpipes which I reproduce, for the benefit of instructors who may lack the tact to make technical matters clear to their pupils.

"Here, Donald," said the teacher of the bagpipes to his scholar, "take yer pipes, mon, and gie us a blast. So! vera well blown indeed. But what is sound, Donald, without sinse? You may blow on to eternity without making a tune o' it, if I do not tell you how the queer things on that bit o' paper will help.

"You see that fellow with the round, open face (pointing to a semibreve between the two lines of a bar); he moves slow from that line to this, just while you jig one with your foot and take a long blast. Now, if you put a leg to him, you make two of him, and he'll move twice as fast. If you black his face till he looks like a naygur, like this one, he'll run four times faster than the fellow with the white face.

"And what think you, Donald, if after the face is made black as ink can make it, so's to bar the mistake of thinkin he's anither color, if you bend his knee or tie his legs he will hop you still eight times faster than the white fellow I showed you at first.

"Now, whenever you blow yer pipes, Donald, me mon, remember this and ye'll ha' larnt a bra' fine lesson; the tighter these fellow's legs are tied the faster they run, and the quicker they are sure to dance.

"Good music is na a' in the blowin, for if that was so, every lawyer in coort and every deminie in the poolpit would be a bra' and sensible men, but you and me know they are neither."

ARE THE AUTHORITIES APATHETIC?

Were smallpox to spread in Victoria and become epidemic, whose fault would it be? The scourge was introduced into Vancouver from China by the C.P.R. steamers, which was permitted to leave quarantine at Albert Head with the contagion still clinging to her. The first blunder was then committed. The Vancouver authorities proved themselves equal to the occasion and by vigorous efforts succeeded in confining the disease to narrow limits and to less than a dozen of its population. It is now almost stamped out in that city. Victoria has fared better, for the first case—a very mild one—was removed to the quarantine station outside of the city. The second case reported subsequently proved to be chicken pox. This has reference to a few weeks ago, and since that time our citizens have been congratulating themselves on the fact that the dreaded disease had been successfully stamped out. The report of the medical officer, presented to the city council last night, has undeceived the too confiding aldermanic mind, and the knowledge that the council now possesses, and the flying of the yellow flag on one of the principal streets of city, will probably convince the mayor and council that "desperate diseases require desperate remedies." Those who are responsible for the enforcement of the sanitary laws would be held responsible by some people, rightly or wrongly, should two or three or half a dozen cases develope in the city after such ample warning, and especially were any deaths to result therefrom. The people of Vancouver were taken unawares, and could not be expected to fight the enemy until it was known that there was one. It has been different here, and it will be well for the mayor and council, and the health officer, to take the hint and do their whole duty in the premises.

NOT SO FAVORABLE.

Yesterday's elections gave the Gladstonians nothing in the way of gains, and their prospects are to-day by no means so bright. They must capture a large number of seats in the rest of the English boroughs and the counties to keep up the average of the first day's polling. Evidently London opinion remains strongly Conservative and Unionist, notwithstanding the promise of a change which the County Council elections seemed to offer. The Liberals to-day can hardly hope to secure a decisive majority in the new House; the best they can do now, apparently, is to make the election exceedingly close. That will be in some respects an unfortunate result, since it will leave the great issue undecided and cause a new election in the near future. One outcome of the contest seems likely to be the almost total wiping out of the Liberal-Unionist party. Only eight out of the 160 members so far elected belong to that party, and a large proportion of those were returned in very safe districts. The extermination of the "dissident" section was fully predicted by many of the Gladstonians, who have at least the pleasure of seeing this prediction very largely fulfilled, for the Liberal-Unionists will hardly be able to maintain even their present proportion of the membership. Mr. Chamberlain's following in the new Parliament will be easily counted

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Hon. the Premier to-day said a very cruel thing of the Colonist. Observed by a friend with half a dozen copies of Sunday morning's issue under his arm, he was asked what he was going to do with them. "Why, I am taking them home for Mrs. D. to make a crumb-cloth for the dining room. Paper of this kind, you know, is impervious to anything."

Mr. Andrew Carnegie is a firm believer in protection. He is also possessed of a strong conviction that his employees in the Hometead Steel Works are bound to agree to any proposal he may make in the direction of lowering wages and thus increasing his own profits. When they object alike to the lower wages and to other men taking their places, Mr. Carnegie turns a Pinkerton band loose on them, armed with Winchester rifles. If the Homestead workmen are not by this time convinced of the soundness of Mr. Carnegie's contention that "protection" is good for the artizan they must surely want very forcible arguments to turn their minds. Great is Protection, and chaps like Carnegie are its apostles.

Mr. Corbould, M.P., for New Westminster, has returned from Ottawa. There are, all told, six British Columbia representatives. Three of them—Prior, Barnard and Corbould—are at their homes attending to private business; while the others—Earle, Gordon and Mara—continue to protest against the treatment British Columbia receives and vote with the Government every time. There is some excuse for Mr. Barnard sulking in his tent, for his constituency has been obliterated from the map, but Messrs. Prior and Corbould have everything to lose by neglecting their parliamentary duties. Next year, however, they will do the work while their colleagues stay at home. It is encouraging to us to know that there is one kind of reciprocity in which these protectionists believe.

GOES TO CHINA.

The Genial D. E. Brown to Manage the C. P.R. Steamers at Hongkong.

VANCOUVER, July 6.—The celebration committee met last night to settle up accounts.

The court of revision sat yesterday to consider protests against the local improvement assessments on Carroll, Cordova, Hastings and Abbott streets. The assessment roll was confirmed.

Mr. Trendell, leader of the city band, was married to-day at Christ Church to Miss Rogers, of Toronto.

The four men tried yesterday for stealing timber off J. W. Horne's property were committed for trial without bail.

A meeting of the board of the proposed British Columbia Methodist College met yesterday, when a course of instruction, terms, etc., were decided on. A number of free offers of sites were received and discussed.

It is understood that the contemplated changes in the C. P. R. offices here have been concluded. D. E. Brown goes to China as General Manager of the Pacific Steamship lines; Geo. McL. Brown, agent, succeeds him as District Passenger Agent, and Wm. Brown as district freight agent. D. E. will be banqueted next week before leaving for China.

The inquest on the body of Edith Edgar has not yet concluded. Her stepfather said she was of a happy disposition, religious but not an enthusiast. She played the piano for him before leaving for Sunday school on the day of her death. She was subject to giddy fits.

Music Teachers' Convention.

CLEVELAND, July 5.—Several thousand music teachers from different parts of the country have gathered here to participate in the fifteenth annual meeting of the Music Teachers' National Association, and which opens in the Music Hall this afternoon and will continue until Friday next. Eleven sessions are announced for the four days, and piano and song recitals, chamber music, choral and solo singing and discussions will keep the visitors busy. The programmes, among which are three devoted to compositions by Americans, contain many attractive selections, and the list of soloists announced shows that quality as well as quantity is not lacking. The Cleveland Vocal Society will furnish the choral numbers, and the Detroit Philharmonic Club and the Beck String Quartette will be heard in chamber music.

Gresham Disgruntled.

CHICAGO, July 6.—Judge Walter Gresham neither wants nor would accept anything at the hands of Benjamin Harrison. The judge declared to-day that he would not accept a place on the supreme bench if it was offered him by the President.

Brief Despatches.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 6.—Adolph Moschjat, of Dale, spent yesterday at Picnic Grove in Daisytown. On his way back he stopped at the home of Fred Gerker, his brother-in-law. A bad feeling has for many years existed between the two men, one being a Protestant and the other a Catholic. During a dispute last evening Gerker shot Moschjat dead. Gerker is in jail, and there is talk of lynching him.

THE COMPLEXION CHANGED

STANLEY SOMEWHAT DAZED.

NEW YORK, July 6.—A London special says: It was a wonderful thing last night to hear the wild outburst of cheering when the news was received at the National Liberal Club that Richard Chamberlain had been beaten by something over 2000 votes. There could hardly have been more savage exultation if it had been his brother Joseph who had been overthrown. There was an almost earnest cheering at the news of Stanley's defeat. They say Stanley himself took the result in utter amazement. Some one had provided a magnificent boquet to present to Mrs. Stanley when her husband's triumph should be announced, but somehow it never reached her. Stanley himself sat staring blankly when the figures were read out, and the successful candidate, according to form, rose and made a little speech moving a vote of thanks to the returning officers. Stanley's agent had to nudge him and explain that it was his funeral to second this motion. At first he refused, but finally he was induced to get up, but he only called out curtly "I move to second the motion."

YACHTING.

CHALLENGE FOR THE AMERICA CUP.

NEW YORK, July 6.—A challenge for the America Cup has arrived here from England and will be presented to the New York Yacht Club as soon as the present deed of gift is so modified as to do away with the objectionable dimension clause. A prominent member of the New York Yacht Club, who recently returned from Europe, has the challenge. It comes from the Royal Yacht Squadron of England, and while the name of the person in whose behalf the squadron challenges has not been made known, it is supposed to be the Earl of Dunraven. A meeting of the New York Yacht Club will soon be held, when the objectionable clause will be discussed and a way sought to abolish it. In the event of means being found, next season will see another international yacht race.

A SMART CRAFT.

The new cutter yacht Petrel is to receive some slight alterations and will then be ready for all-comers. Her performance last week pleased the owners very much. She can carry a heavier press of canvas in a strong breeze on the Straits than any yacht in the harbor, and has proved herself in every way a fine sea boat. It is understood this will not be the only cutter flying the V. Y. C. colors at the next Queen's birthday regatta.

LACROSSE.

Ross Eckhart, the recently appointed captain of the Victoria Lacrosse Club, will begin work with the boys on Friday evening, when he wishes a full turn out of the club. Practice games will be played every Monday, Wednesday and Friday till the end of the season and the championship pennant is won.

LADY SEERS AND FORTUNE TELLERS.

TO THE EDITOR:—When will the would be educated enough to make it impossible for fakirs and harpies to exist? At the present time there are quite a few so-called mind-readers or fortune tellers in Victoria who ply their questionable calling and thus victimize the weak minded, mostly of the feminine gender). They have the brazen impudence to distribute circulars with sensational reading head lines and "press testimonials" for the extra credulous. In England the authorities have a summary way of dealing with these "gentry" and the "innocents" are thus protected against "fortune tellers" and their wiles. I think that Victoria should be too warm a place for swindlers of any description, and most of all to harpies who prey on the weakness of our verdant believers in fortune telling. CHEIL.

Mr. P. Dickinson and Miss A. Hicks were married some time ago. The marriage was a very quiet one, the parents of the couple not being apprised of the affair until after it had taken place.

China Creek Mines.

The Seattle company that is to work the mines on China Creek, Alberni, has been fully organized and will have machinery on hand as soon as it is needed. Mr. Anderson is at present on the property with a gang of men sinking a shaft.

W. C. T. U.

The regular meeting of the W.C.T.U. will be held to-morrow in the Temperance Hall, instead of the Refuge Home parlor. A large attendance is requested, as the president will report on the work of the West Washington state convention.

Didn't Know the Law.

Yesterday evening Capt. Davis, of the sloop Edith, was arrested by Officer McNeil and brought before E. Pearson, J. P., charged with unlawfully having in his possession deer meat. The captain stated that he had purchased the venison from an Indian and was not aware that he was breaking the law. The court dismissed him with a caution.

Raspberry Social.

A raspberry social will be held under the auspices of the Methodist church, Victoria West, this evening at the residence of Mrs. Gerow, corner Esquimalt road and Henry street. A good programme has been prepared. The tramway runs past the residence and will let visitors down at the door. This social should draw a large attendance, as it is the first "raspberry social" of the season.

It Was Not Alarming.

"The Midnight Alarm" company drew a respectable crowd at the Victoria theatre last night, and presented a "realistic" play, hardly up to the representations on the bill boards. The audience good-naturedly smiled at the many fine cut, novel, thrilling incidents and climaxes in which innocence and honesty finally triumphed over villainy. The company will continue on its way and draw good houses where better companies with meritorious plays will not be able to move.

Building Laborers.

At the regular meeting of the above union on Tuesday evening in St. George's Hall, the following officers were elected for the ensuing six months: President, John Taylor; vice-president, Robert Schofield; recording secretary, Frank Wall; financial secretary, Wm. Axford; treasurer Harry Allen; sergeant-at-arms, Alex. French; board of directors, Arthur Dutton, Eli Hallett, Richard Merritt. Delegates to the Trades and Labor Council, Arthur Dutton, Frank Wall, Richard Lewis.

Souvenir Spoons.

Two very handsome souvenir spoons have just been made by Messrs. Davidson Bros. for Mr. H. F. Behnsen, for presentation to Mr. G. B. Shaw, S.C., and Jas. R. Carmanah, Major-General, of the Knights of Pythias. The spoons are what are known as nugget souvenir spoons. There is a gold nugget at the point of each, and the spoon is made of a half dollar piece, gold plated. At the other end is a K. of P. badge. The spoons are very neatly made and reflect great credit on the maker.

The Silver King.

The reported sale of the celebrated Toad Mountain mine, the Silver King, published in the Colonist of this morning, is denied by those best informed on the subject. A mining engineer has been examining the mine and has gone to Scotland to lay his report before his friends, but he has not divulged one word of his report. It is not improbable that a sale may be effected, but false reports of this character will not help to bring a sale about.

The Fast Mail.

Manager Cort has booked for Saturday evening, July 9th, the great railroad melodrama, Lincoln J. Carter's Fast Mail, which will be given a grand scenic production, that in many respects promises to be one of the most remarkable ever in this city. The play is constructed on strictly modern principles. The interest starts at a terrific pace, and is not allowed to flag for an instant. The incidents are made doubly thrilling by the mechanical and scenic effects that are employed. The company is highly spoken of, and the play is well constructed, with a strong tinge of comedy to off-set the serious elements.

Not a Smuggler.

The following dispatch has been sent from Port Townsend: An unknown sloop bound across to the American side from Victoria, capsized near Race Rocks today. The barkentine Crocker observed the accident, but was unable to render assistance on account of heavy westerly wind. The sloop is thought to be a smuggler, as the authorities claim to have information that a sloop sailed from Victoria late last night laden with contraband Chinese. The dispatch probably refers to the accident to Clinton Parry and H. J. Wright's sloop, which was upturned on Sunday. Messrs. Parry and Wright were rescued by a fishing boat.

Impure Water.

At this season the greatest care should be exercised in obtaining pure water, which can be done only by using a first class filter. Owing to the large demand for these goods during the last week, the Sehl-Hastie-Erskine Co., have obtained a complete line of silicated carbon filters in all sizes and shapes at prices which put them within reach of all. Inspection solicited. *

B. C. Law Society.

At a meeting of the Law Society held to-day Robert Cassidy, lately a prominent barrister of Winnipeg, was appointed reporter to the association, vice Gordon Hunter resigned. Ernest Miller, who for several years has been studying law with Messrs. Pemberton & Dumbleton, made application for permission to attend law lectures at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, and the application was granted. Mr. Miller will leave here in September and will spend a couple of years at Ontario's capital, prosecuting his studies.

Labouchere's Pillory.

London Truth, of June 16, contains the following: "These two cases have been sent to me from Victoria (B.C.) as a contribution towards my "Legal Pillory." As I have already stated, I am reluctantly compelled to reserve the "Pillory" exclusively for articles produced in the home market, but these two cases are too interesting to be lost. They show how little our famous "English Justice" varies in different parts of the globe:

"1. A Chinese cook, in the service of the keeper of a disorderly house, was found guilty, at Victoria, of stealing a knife from his mistress. He was suspected of having stolen some money also, but there was no previous conviction against him. Sentence, three years' hard labor.

"2. A barrister was charged with converting to his own use trust money to the amount of $6000, this being one of a series of misappropriations extending over several years. He was released on bail, one of the judges (his father-in-law) being his surety, and the case was subsequently settled."

The Y. M. C. A. executive committee for the Pacific Northwest held its quarterly meeting in the association rooms here yesterday evening. There were present, G. F. Orchord, of Tacoma, president, J. A. Dummett, travelling secretary, A. Haywood, Tacoma, J. Rogers, president of the Vancouver association, and T. M. Henderson, of Victoria.

The principal matter of consideration was the annual convention to be held at Tacoma, from September 21st to 25th, the preliminaries for which were decided on. The election of a new secretary for Victoria association was discussed, but no action was taken in the matter, which will be left in the hands of the association.

The ladies' auxiliary of the association entertained the visitors and several of the active workers in the association here, at a banquet given in the lecture room, and a very pleasant time was had.

At a meeting held last night the board of managers relieved J. B. Grimshaw, who has, since Mr. Teague's departure, filled the position of general secretary, and who has taken the general secretaryship of the New Westminster association. Mr. Grimshaw leaves for his new field of work on August 9th.

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

VICTORIA YACHTSMEN

But for the Light Wind the Victorian Would Have Crossed the Line First.

The Victoria yacht Ada, Captain James Seeley, returned from Anacortes last evening about 6, after a most interesting trip. The Ada's crew was composed of Messrs. J. Seeley, captain, C. A. Godson, A. W. Taylor and Victor Mitchell, all experienced sailors and old hands at the business of yacht sailing. After having been put in proper trim by Mr. Seeley the Ada was declared fit for racing last Thursday. A start was made at 8:30 Friday morning, but there being no wind she lay off the San Pedro until 5 p.m. Then with the tide and a light wind, she reached Lopez Island at midnight and was becalmed in the middle of a dense fog, which obscured the lighthouse lamps completely. The Ada lay to under her mainsail and drifted around all night, the crew spending an anxious and uncomfortable time. They had not the slightest idea as to their whereabouts, and were somewhat alarmed to hear a heavy buzzing sound which increased at intervals to a dull roaring. One man suggested whales and was advised to go below and take a sip of whiskey to steady his nerves. This he did. At last the noise increased to an alarming extent, and without a moment's warning the yacht was in the midst of a boiling tide rip. It was an exciting time for all hands, but the Ada weathered it gallantly, coming out undamaged. When day dawned the mariners found that they had drifted back to San Juan Island, fully 20 miles from Lopez Island.

Fortunately a fine steady breeze sprang up and with all sail set and the water gurgling merrily over the lee gunnel the Ada bore away for Anacortes. The sky cleared, the sun came out and they all felt like modern mariners, and enjoyed to the fullest extent the glorious scenery as the Ada flew along to her destination. Anchor was let go in Anacortes harbor off the Union wharf at 4 p.m., and the Victoria yacht received a very warm welcome. The Anacortes silver band turned out and played "See the Conquering Hero Comes." Bugles and tin horns were blown, the immense crowds along the shore cheered lustily and the Stars and Stripes and the flags on all the other yachts were dipped thrice. The Anacortes yacht club, headed by the mayor, received the Victorians as they stepped ashore and conducted them to the reception room.

One of the first to greet the visitors was Chief Anderson of the Anacortes fire department who was supposed to have been drowned returning home from Victoria after the 24th. The Anderson who was drowned was an old sailor a resident of one of the islands.

The guests were royally entertained at a magnificent banquet in the City Hall at which the mayor presided. Although only two or three years old Anacortes has every adjunct of a modern city, electric light, tramways, telephones and a fine hotel. On Sunday the boats arrived from Whatcom and Fairhaven and everything was made ready for the race next day. The Victorians had the pleasure of renewing the acquaintance of Commodore Wheeler, whose fast sailing yacht won the principal prizes here on the Queen's Birthday. The Anacortans were much pleased when informed that the Ada was to sail in the races in return for the American boats coming to Victoria.

On Monday, the fourth, in glorious weather, after the usual sports and games ashore, the yacht race was called and the boats took their places on the starting line. It was with little hope of winning that the Ada's crew entered their craft against the latest pattern Herreshoffs, which composed the bulk of the American fleet. At the start the American boats, with a light wind blowing, skimmed away and left the Ada far behind. Capt. Seely was just making up his mind that he and his crew would not have the pleasure of seeing the race at all when a stiff breeze sprung up and made the Ada plough through the sea like a greyhound. The course consisted of a two mile straight stretch to the right side of the base of a triangle, then around the triangle twice and home again over the straight stretch. It was while going down the first side of the triangle that the captain of the Ada was humming, "There are moments when we'd rather be alone," when the breeze sprang up. One after another the Herreshoffs were overhauled and passed until there were only two ahead of the Ada. Then the wind died away to a zephyr, and on the home stretch three of the American boats slipped past the Ada, she winning fifth place in a field of 18 boats. The time was as follows: Hornet, 1 h. 27 m. 16 s.; Mabel, 1 h. 28 m. 5 s.; "B. B.," 1 h. 37 m. 26 s.; American, 1 h. 40 m. 40 s.; Ada, 1 h. 52 m. 28 s.; Henrietta, 1 h. 54 m. 42 s.; Nellie, 2 h. 1 m. 34 s.; Petrel, 2 h. 2 m. 68 s.; Progress, Ripple, Ariel, Teamster and Flying Dutchman. The course was 14 miles.

For a time it looked as though the Ada would finish first, and she would have done so, but for the wind falling. The Herreshoff boats are no use in a heavy breeze. The crew are satisfied with having beaten some of the fast boats on the Sound, and with only a cruising outfit of sails.

The Victoria cutter Petrel, owned by Mr. A. Scroggs, of course, stood no chance in inland waters against the light American skimming dishes. It was the first time she had sailed, and the shavings were still on her deck. Captain Foot handled the tiller. She made the run from Victoria to Anacortes in eight hours. She has great speed in a strong wind and will make a name for herself yet. The yacht Scud, which started for Anacortes turned back, owing to heavy weather.

The run home was an exciting race between the Ada and Petrel, the latter winning by a short distance; the Ada having to shorten sail at Trial Island.

Delegates from every port on the Sound will be here August 11th, to arrange for the formation of the Northwestern International Yacht Club. All the yachtmen at Anacortes were enthusiastic about the scheme and it is certain to be accomplished.

COWYARD CUTTING CASE.

Frank Spizzan Sentenced to Three Months and to Pay a Fine of $50.

The hearing of the Spizzan-Gadsby cutting case occupied all the morning at the police court to-day.

Thomas Gadsby told the court that early on Sunday morning he was standing on the sidewalk on Herald street talking to a lady (Indian), and Thomas Anderson, William McNulty and the prisoner Frank Spizzan were talking a short distance from him, in front of what are known as the cowyard cabins. He heard someone say "he's got a knife," and McNulty ran toward Government street followed by the prisoner. McNulty tripped and fell and the Italian ran up to him and made a slash at him. Just then Anderson picked up a rock and struck the prisoner on the forehead with it, "knocking him silly." The witness ran to where McNulty and the prisoner were, when the latter struck at him cutting him on the breast. The prisoner went down the street a short distance and then came back and went into one of the cabins.

Thos. Anderson confirmed the evidence of Gadsby. The trouble arose he thought, over the fact that an Indian woman ran away from the prisoner and would have nothing to do with him. He admitted striking the prisoner with a rock, as he was about to strike McNulty with what he thought was a knife. All concerned in the fracas had been drinking.

Wm. McNulty gave evidence in support of the other witnesses.

Officer Smith testified that he heard someone say he wished a policeman would come along, and he ran to where he heard the voice. He saw the three witnesses in front of the cowyard, and they told him of the fracas. McNulty dropped some rocks as he came up, remarking that he had to defend himself. He found the prisoner in a cabin with a razor in his possession.

Dominick Sost, an Italian, said he saw the three witnesses and the prisoner before the row, and heard someone say something about maccaroni eater.

Though Mr. Gregory Spizzan stated that he was returning from a friend's where he went to get shaved when he met McNulty and got into a row. Some one hit him on the head and he struck at Gadsby, who ran at him at that time.

The court convicted the prisoner, and sentenced him to pay a fine of $50 and three months' imprisonment, with a farther imprisonment of three months in default of payment of the fine.

Louis Eraser, an Indian, was taxed $5 for being drunk.

OFFICIAL INVESTIGATION.

The court of enquiry into the cause of the sinking of the Government steamer Quadra in Houston Stewart channel, Queen Charlotte Islands, sat yesterday afternoon from 1 to 3 o'clock at the custom house. Captains Lewis and Devereaux conducted the enquiry, the result being the complete exoneration of Captain Gaudin from blame. It was proven that he was misled by an incorrect chart, but did all that a competent navigator could have done under the circumstances. No new facts beyond those already made public were brought out at the examination. The Quadra was running through the channel at half speed, going with the ebb tide. The chart showed the channel quite clear, and the B.C. Pilot calls the channel a "safe and commodious anchorage." The rock upon which the Quadra struck is directly in the middle of the fair way. Capt. Gaudin, Capt. Walbran, first-mate Owings and Chief Engineer Grant were the witnesses examined yesterday. The investigation was continued to-day.

The investigation was continued today, several of the crew being examined. The remainder will be examined to-morrow and the investigation concluded. The contract for repairing the Quadra has not yet been let, but will be, it is expected, before Saturday. No work is being done upon the vessel.

NOT MANY SALMON.

The Run on the Skeena Not Very Large—News from the North.

The steamer Princess Louise arrived from the North early this morning with a fairly good freight and the following passengers: E. S. Fader, F. King, F. McBride, E. Dawson, Thos. Hay, D. Buckley, J. McGlocklan and R. Thompson.

The steamer Cariboo Fly, which went North to work in connection with the Royal Canadian cannery, lost her propeller just as she was making a landing at Claxton, and a new one will be sent up.

The steamer Blond, which is to take the Standard's place on the Skeena, arrived on the day that the Louise left. The Islander was passed near Alert Bay.

The salmon run on the Skeena has not been good so far, the canneries, however, are hard at work making the best of it.

A TRAMP THROUGH CORNWALL.

TRURO, Cornwall, June 4.—Almost until today, as time is measured, Cornwall has been to the remainder of England a veritable terra incognita. "West Barbary" it was contemptuously called to describe its uncanniness, its supposed ignorance and its popularly accredited semibarbarism. What weird and desolate Connemara in Ireland's wild west is and has always been to the Green isle, this scarred and ragged peninsula has been to England.

Of its 400,000 souls one-tenth, from youth to death, in darkness pick and blast in shift and drift beneath its windswept moors. Until a century since a distinct language, the Cornubian Celtic, was spoken, taught and preached. Today in some of the larger towns "the purest English spoken" is said to prevail; but again today not a league from these towns, among fisher folk, miners and peasants an ordinary Englishman or American can scarcely understand a word uttered. Yet here are life and scene of the greatest fascination; both life and scene of simplicity, beauty and grandeur, while romance and legend glow wondrously in every tor, combe and stream; romance and legend the oldest and most winsome in all England. Here lived or were born to deathless legend Arthur, Launcelot and Guinevere and the brave old Round Table knights.

It is a curious shaped bit of land, this rugged old Cornwall. Its geographic contour suggests the strange silhouette of some couchant gigantic mastiff or huge wild beast. It is easy to see in its southernmost outreaching its two powerful fore feet. In its northern coast line will be found its braced and bristling back. In its most northern projection will be seen an erect and defiant tail. In its eastern Devonshire boundary are its massive haunches and hind feet wedged against the eternal granite of Devon. And its farthermost sea split, ocean battling promontory, the open mouth of the stone leviathan, sets savagely toward the seething Scilly isles, forever lashed with spume and fume of its interminable battles with the Atlantic.

Were you to stand, as I have done, on Hensbarrow, one of its drear and highest peaks, you could see smiling Devon to the east, almost to Land's End, its farthest westward wall; to Lizard Head, its remotest southern headland; across its entire reach of hills and moorlands, far out upon St. George's channel to the northwest, and over the white sails of fisher and coaster to the southeast, even to the dim cone of that most wondrous of all mariners' beacons, the splendid Eddystone lighthouse.

But standing on that spot little else than apparent desolation meets the eye. The moorlands stretch dolorously, as if in boundless loneliness. The tors or hills are bleak and bare. The whole face of nature seems torn and scarred, as if by tremendous elemental struggles. Yet all these caverns and chasms which disfigure it were made by the hand of man. Its granite, shale and slate hid copper, tin and iron. For more than 3,000 years its surface has been cleft and its depths gored and bored until its face is pitted as if with extinct volcanoes, whose bases were honeycombed sometimes to a mile's depth and often laterally so far outward beneath the ocean that its very shell was cracked and broken, until, to prevent the sea dropping through, the bottom was stuffed and plugged and soldered like a leaky old basin.

This is what you will see and feel and know among the downs and tors along the rocky backbone of Cornwall. But along the north coast in summer, and everywhere upon the south coast in summer and nearly all winter, are never ending surprises of scenic beauty. Indeed the entire south English and Irish coasts are almost semitropic lands. Semitropic bits of land surely can be found, for I have seen at Bournemouth, at Torquay and at Plymouth, in England; at Truro, Falmouth and Penzance, in Cornwall, and at Youghal, alongside Sir Walter Raleigh's old home, in Ireland, roses in full bloom and luxuriantly foliaged myrtle out of doors in midwinter.

Along the way I am leisurely tramping, with the English channel nearly always in sight, are innumerable Cornish valleys of slumbrous beauty. Tiny burns and combes are cut through the walls by the sea. Through every one limpid streams go singing and tumbling to the ocean. Along the valley sides are white hamlets, or the quaint old homes, the rich acres and the sleek herds of the thrifty farmers of Cornwall.

Tramp these coast roads but a mile and you will suddenly stumble upon these lovely vales—the stream, the farms half hidden by generous foliage dotting the sides far up the combe as the eye can reach, here a rumbling old mill, there a nestling church, below you a quaint old village; beyond, the tiny haven skirted by the homes of fishers and specked by odd old fishers' crafts; farther, a tide plowing up between massive haven walls, or a stretch of low tide rock and drift, and at last the bright blue sea. Beautiful scenes are these for the eye and heart-mind to dwell upon, hardly to be found in such number and winsomeness anywhere else upon all of England's coast.

Just before you pass from Devonshire into Cornwall you will find most intense the English suspicion that the Cornish folk are a sort of barbarians. The landlord of the little inn where I lodged in Plymouth, though admitting that he had never crossed the Tamar, commiseratingly ventured the sympathetic remark that he'd be blessed if he wouldn't prefer Whitechapel to Cornwall.

"W'y, 'n them Cousin Jacks knows nowt but tin," he added, with a flourish. "Nigger blood in 'em, too, they do say. Black as a pit mouth, 'alf on 'em. An blessed if you'll get nowt t' eat better'n 'oggans 'n faggans, from Saltash to Land's Hend!"

His words were true as to the dark complexions of most of the Cornish people. In a mile's distance of Devonshire you are among another race of men than the fair faced, phlegmatic English. Faces are everywhere seen of a distinct eastern type; and surely eastern blood, whether Jewish, from the Jewish mine owners of a thousand years ago, or from the Phœnician traders of an earlier period, is still rich in Cornish veins. It gives here and there the waxen olive skin, almost universally the glossy black curling hair and dark eyes, and statures short, compact and shapely.

Their ways are rough, and Cornish manners are the frankest and sincerest of any people I have ever been among. They comprise simply meaning what you say and saying what you mean, whatever the subject or occasion. All this, too, with absolute unconsciousness of affront. Between Polperro and Lanlarue a youth gave me a help along the way in his donkey cart laden with sand. I thanked him heartily on alighting. Looking me squarely in the face he asked:

"Wusent a gimme sumpn for th' feer, my son?"

He got a sixpence for the "fair," and my apologies for not recognizing his honest rights in the matter. Cornish folk, big and little, have no truculency in asking for their just due. This plainness of speech is everywhere met with. The lad's expression, "my son," had no levity or taunt in it. It is everywhere here a term of friendship and respect.

Between Saltash and Truro I made application at the houses of many farmers for food and lodging. The food could always be had by paying for it before it was eaten. But the latter could not be got for any wheedling or sum of money. They would bluntly tell me to find an inn. If I professed ignorance of the locality of one, they would go or send some one with me. I always dismissed my escort before the place was reached, determined to pass the nights in the homes of the lowly.

This sort of procedure, and conversations with others than the farmers upon the subject, gradually developed the fact that Cornish farmers have nothing in common with the great body of Cornish people. They are a species of "gentry" in the minds of the latter. Though only tenant farmers, their holdings are large for England, from 20 to 100 acres, and have been occupied for generations by the same families on ninety-nine years' leases. They often go to "Lunnon," and their children are sent to Truro for schooling. They are stanch supporters of the Established church, while the masses are Wesleyans.

But the fisher and mining folk are unequivocally hospitable. The fisherman will take care of you in his little cottage without question, without locking a thing in his habitation against you, but still with a dumb sort of quiescence. The miner is a more rough and ready fellow, and if not always hearty about it, settles the matter for or against you at once. All this the literary tramp will quickly discover, and I shortly began directing my diplomacy toward the ordinary home in the mining villages.

You will find them through nearly all the length of Cornwall from Liskeard to Penzance, and they are seldom clustered in dirty villages contiguous to the mines as in our own country. I do not recall a single instance of this sort during my entire journeyings. Two, three, four, a half dozen and sometimes a score, may be found together.

Few are as near as a half mile; thousands are miles away. "Pairdners" in a "core" (corps), who combine their labors and work one of the three eight hour "shifts" of each day, may live in as many different directions from the "bal" or pit, Jack, Jem or Jan often occupying homes from six to ten miles apart. But wherever these little miners' hamlets are their walls are all of everlasting stone, embowered in brilliant Cornish roses and creepers, with cement floors and thatched roofs, every one subject to interminable repairs from onslaughts of vicious sparrows, themselves tiny miners, endlessly sinking shafts and drilling "crosscuts" and "levels" in the soft and yielding straw.

I was soon able to march squarely up to Jack and Jenny at their cottage doors and boldly ask for accommodations for the night. There was no halting in the negotiations on either side.

"Wass say, Jenny?" the burly fellow would pleasantly ask of his honest wife. "Shall a lay un oop?"

"Lay un oop," it should be explained, did not mean that the stranger should be attacked or hustled. It is Cornish for entertaining, caring for or housing him.

"If tha (thee, thou) cun stan un, Jack," the wife would reply.

"All right, un son," would be the rejoinder, addressed to me. "If tha cun stan un, maak a sel (yourself) t'hoam!"

There was no further ceremony about the matter. I always slept in the half story garret beneath the thatch. There is one room below—sometimes two. One door, the front one, is found sufficient. A window is at either side of this, and often directly above these are tiny lights for the garret. Each cottage is provided at one end or at the back with an open fireplace in the center of the wall. It has a sort of a range at one side covered with outlandish brass ornaments at which the Cornish housewife is endlessly polishing. At the other side is the "ungconer." This has "heps" or upper and under doors, behind which are stored furze faggots or other fuel.

At the fireplace are the "brandes," a trinangular iron on legs, on which, usually over the furze fires, the kettles boil, the circular cast iron "baker" and cover are set, and the fish or meat, when they can be indulged in, is "scrowled" or grilled. There are perhaps four chairs. These will have solid mahogany frames, but the seats are of painted pine and are waxed weekly. These are for "best," and are all the best. For everyday use one or two "firms" or rude benches are provided.

The single table is of pine, one top coming flush with the sides, the other detached, two inches thick, one side unpainted and scoured snowy white daily with "growder," a rotten granite which lathers like soap, and the other side painted for Sunday or "company" use, and a drawer beneath for rude cutlery. The table ware is something startling in cheap goods, and each member of the family is provided with a real "chany" cup and saucer, with a gorgeous gilt band. Two or three rude engravings, generally of Scriptural subjects, in cheap oaken frames such as the village carpenter may make, with the beds and bedding under the thatch, complete the furniture of the miner's cottage.

For his class and means he is a generous liver. Soups and stews are consumed by the gallon. For his breakfast, if he is out of the mine, "mawther," the wife, will provide the usually villainous "tay" consumed by the English and Irish working classes, infrequently an egg, perhaps a bit of saffron cake, a Cornish favorite apparently devoid of everything but sweet and color, and maybe bread (without butter) and treacle. Sometimes this is varied with "butter sops"—stale bread scalded and seasoned meagerly. At noon or for the mine "croust" or lunch there are "taty pasties," or potatoes and vagrant meat scraps inclosed in a crescent shaped crust, interchangeable with "figgy pasties," the same as "taty pasties" with a few raisins added; "hoggans," or round pork pies, and "faggans," tough crust cakes so hard, at least in Cornish renown, that they would not break if hurled down a 1,000-fathom mine shaft. For supper, "croust," that is, lunch of any sort left over from the day's provision, or perhaps a "baker o' taties," which means mashed potatoes fried in grease, turned and browned and cut in as many segments as there are members of the family, may be provided. The one big Sunday meal, however, is seldom lacking in a generous supply of boiling meat, and as every cottage has its acre or half acre garden there is always in summer a bountiful supply of vegetables in the Cornish miner's home. THEIR FIRST MEETING.

The Directors of the Jubilee Hospital Elected Their Officers Last Night.

Old Directors Think Expenses Should be Cut Down---Other Important Business.

The first meeting of the new Board of Directors of the Jubilee Hospital was held last evening, there being present, Joshua Davies, Chas. Hayward, W. M. Chudley, Alex. Wilson, B. Gordon, John Braden, I. Braverman, Thomas Shotbolt, E. C. Baker, A. C. Flummerfelt, Geo. Byrnes and Major Dupont.

Mr. Alex. Wilson moved, and Thos. Shotbolt seconded, that Mr. Joshua Davies be appointed president. The motion carried unanimously.

Mr. Davies, in thanking the board, said he was pleased to see new blood on the Board of Directors and he hoped that the new board would be able to pay off a large amount of the debts. He was glad to hear of the success of the recent bazaar held by the ladies and the generous manner in which the citizens had offered to give their refund taxes to the institution. The institution is well known throughout the province and in Washington and only praises were heard about it. If the board would work in harmony they could do a great deal for the hospital and keep up its good name.

Mr. Chas. Hayward was unanimously elected vice-president.

Mr. Hayward thanked the board for s election. He realized that there was a great deal of work before the board. Last year a large amount of money was received, but the expenditures exceeded the receipts. The board would have to contrive some means to meet the expenses. He thought this could be done by cutting down the expenses. For instance, there was an account for $1500 for milk. He thought such accounts as this could be reduced.

Mr. A. C. Flummerfelt nominated Mr. W. M. Chudley as hon. treasurer. He did not think they could get a better treasurer.

Mr. Chudley was elected unanimously. He thanked the board for the honor. He, too, thought the expenses could be cut down.

A letter was read from Jas. Dunsmuir declining the position of a director. Received with regret.

From Capt. Hilts, of the Salvation Army, asking the board if they could supply their rescue home with medicine.

The secretary was ordered to reply that any inmates of the home would be treated at the hospital.

From W. P. Snowden, stating that he would convey ten feet of his client's property on Mount Tolmie road if the deed was furnished. On motion it was decided to send the letter to the council, asking them to prepare the deed.

From Thos. Storey, asking the board to reconsider his contract for burying the hospital's paupers, as the price he was getting was inadequate.

The communication was received and referred to a committee, composed of Messrs. Braden, Wilson and Hayward.

The resident surgeon's report was read and adopted.

Mr. H. D. Helmcken was elected a director in place of Mr. Jas. Dunsmuir.

The secretary was instructed to thank the Ladies' Auxiliary for the assistance they had rendered the board.

CABLE NOTES.

Wm. O'Brien Severely Injured—Portugal Hard Up—A Murderer Guillotined.

DUBLIN, July 5.—Advices from Cork state that John Sheehan, Parnellite, accused of striking Mr. Wm. O'Brien on the head with a stone, has been arrested. Mr. O'Brien is worse, and some apprehension is felt as to the result of his injury.

PARIS, July 5.—The Pope has written a letter to the Bishop of Grenoble regarding the relations between Church and State in France. His Holiness says that he regrets that some Catholics show themselves rebellious in regard to the injunctions of the Church on the pretext that these injunctions are of a political kind. The Pope further says he hopes the masses will learn to appreciate that the Church is appealing for the co-operation of all honest men in the task of overcoming sectarian persecution, which is compassing the religious and moral ruin of France. The nation will then recognize its true friends, and society transformed will bow to the will of God.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 5.—When the Grand Duke Vladimir, who is making a military tour of inspection in Novgorod, arrived at Tchersporet, the door of the saloon carriage in which he was riding flew open, and the Grand Duke, who was leaning against it, fell heavily upon the flagstone of the station platform. He was rendered unconscious, and blood streamed over his face. The doctors who attended him found besides his wounds and contusions on his head dislocation of a leg and arm.

PARIS, July 5.—The Figaro recently announced that the famous singer, Jean de Reszke, was to marry Mme. Coulaine, the divorced wife of Count Mailly Nesles. To-day the same paper publishes a denial of the report, and it is surmised a duel, and possibly more than one, may grow out of the false announcement.

ROME, July 5.—Complaints continue to be received by the government that silver is growing more scarce in all the large towns of Italy. Efforts to put a check to the export of coin have thus far failed to be effective. In the past three months the country has been depleted of one hundred million lire by exports. It is feared that the state reserves of silver will soon be exhausted.

BERLIN, July 5.—Five recruits, who were on their way to Munster to report for duty, began skylarking while crossing the river Werre, and their boat capsized. They were all drowned.

BERLIN, July 5.—Baron Opperman has been found dead in bed at the Hotel National, Berlin, with a gunshot wound in his head. It is supposed that financial reverses led to his suicide.

BERLIN, July 5.—In order to evade the severe provisions of the Sunday excise laws, all the cigar shops of the city have been converted into taverns.

BERLIN, July 5.—In reply to a protest from the German government against the reduction of the interest in the Portuguese exterior debt, Portugal expresses the most sincere regret for being compelled to take such action, and declares it to be imperative. It is further explained that Portugal can't give a guarantee of full payment to her creditors now, as such a step would in a short time compell her to entirely suspend the payment of her debt.

CHRISTIANIA, July 5.—King Oscar has written to the president of the Storthing, still declining to sanction the desire to separate the consulates for Norway, and this refusal caused a widespread feeling, which resulted in several marked demonstrations.

PARIS, July 5.—A dispatch from Tonquin states that another great battle has occurred between the French and a large body of Tonquinese pirates who were entrenched at Thanhoa. The French force numbered 150 men. After desperate resistance the French charged the pirates' position and carried it, but not until they had lost 16 men killed and wounded.

MADRID, July 5.—The mob yesterday demanded of the mayor liberate the many prisoners arrested in the rioting on Saturday or try them forthwith. The mayor refusing, some of the rioters stormed the barracks, attempting to prevent the exitof the civil guards, while others stormed the residences of the various municipal officials, and even threatened to set fire to them. Troops were sent down from Togron to quell the riot. During the day the mayor resigned.

PARIS, July 5.—Mathias Hadelt was guillotined to-day at Valence for the murder of Father Illedfonce, procurator of the Trappist monastery at Aigubelle. Hadelt, after the murder, robbed the monastery. The next man to be executed is the anarchist Ravachol. Hadelt was not the true name of the man executed to-day. He had a varied career of crime, and had been sentenced under various names in Switzerland, Italy, Germany and Bohemia, chiefly for attempts at robbing monasteries. He did so by entering them as a lay brother. He also posed as the illegitimate son of Count Von Spee. Count Von Spee himself was received in the army several times, always to its disgrace.

DEATH IN THE MILK CAN!

It is extremely dangerous to feed young infants during the intense heat of summer with a poor quality of cow's milk. In this respect, city mothers are more to blame than the mothers of country districts.

The city milkman is on his rounds for hours; his milk-cans are continually exposed to the burning sun, and his milk (always sufficiently watered) is so warmed, that it quickly becomes sour and unfit for nourishment.

Imagine a weak and frail baby being fed on such a diet; it is almost certain death. This stale and sour milk is, without doubt, the direct cause of a vast proportion of the infantile mortality of all large cities during the hot weather.

Mothers, you are responsible for your infants' safety and life. With the light you now possess, see that summer diseases, such as cholera infantum, dysentery and diarrhœa, do not lay hold of your babe. You may preserve it by feeding it on health-giving Lactated Food, which contains all the best constituents of pure and healthy breast milk.

Lactated Food will bring back life to your infant if it is physically weak and run-down; it will cause the little one to rest and sleep well; it will cause it to grow strong and vigorous; it will make it bright and happy.

Trust no longer in cow's milk as a health-giver and strengthener; and have a care how you feed baby with the common prepared foods now so abundant; they have a tendency to produce irritation, and few little stomachs can endure them; indeed, many of them produce inflammation, and dangerously affect the digestive organs.

One trial of Lactated Food will convince you of its many excellencies and great worth. When it is used, you will find baby thriving and progressing beyond your most sanguine expectations. Go at once to your druggist and purchase a tin; you will find that it is just what baby loves to take.

Pipe Smokers.

You may be satisfied with the brands of tobaccos you have been using for years. Grant it; that you are satisfied. As there is always room for improvement, we ask you to try our OLD CHUM PLUG, or CUT smoking tobacco; we believe you will be BETTER satisfied. In any case, a trial won't hurt you. m-w-s

NANAIMO NEWS.

NANAIMO, July 6.—A resident of Cedar District named Mr. Ross, complains of having a valuable horse shot by some individual. The shooting is supposed to have been done by some spiteful person who has a grudge against the owner. A veterinary surgeon says although the horse is badly wounded he will come around all right.

A petition is being circulated around the city in behalf of young Vipond, praying the Lieut.-Governor to pardon him owing to his extreme youth. The petition is being widely signed as great sympathy is felt in the city concerning the case.

Mr. James Lister, while working in No. 3 shaft yesterday afternoon, met with a severe accident which might have had more serious consequences. While he was at his work a fall of rock came down and part of it fell on him breaking his arm. The limb was set by Dr. Praegar.

In conversation with Mr. A. Shaw yesterday it was learned that the liabilities of the Electric Light Company is $35,000 instead of $50,000. Mr. Shaw has put $18,000 himself into the enterprise, which he is much afraid he will now lose. The works were running very satisfactorily and the debt was being lessened at the rate of $4000 per year after paying all running expenses, so that the report that the light was not paying is entirely untrue. Much sympathy is expressed for Mr. Shaw, who is looked upon as a strictly honest citizen and is much respected in this community.

The moonlight excursion, which was to have been given on the 8th, for the benefit of St. Alban's church, has been postponed indefinitely. The branch of the Hamilton Powder Works at Northfield has been partly closed down and only the high explosives are now being manufactured. The works will be in full blast again in about two months.

The Honduras Revolution.

NEW ORLEANS, July 6.—The steamer Joseph Oteri, Jr., which was seized by the Honduras insurgents under Col. Nuila, arrived at the quarantine station yesterday. She reports that the north coast of Honduras is completely in the hands of the revolutionists, and the merchants and people generally there being in sympathy with the revolution, business is progressing as usual. Her officers confirm the reported capture of Truxillo. Commandant Gen. Munoz, Secretary Partello, and several others were killed. One of the attacking party was also killed. An attempt was also made to take Ruatan, which was frustrated with the loss of the ship's boats. The vessel returned to Truxillo whence she proceeded to Coiba with the troops and Col. Nuila still on board. The steamer was then released and sailed for Livingston, where she entered a protest before the American consul and on the 30th sailed for home. The revolution is led by the best men of the Republic. The forced taxes by Gen. Munoz on the principal merchants has been returned by Col. Nuila, which has had the effect of increasing his popularity with the people. The officers and crew of the Oteri state that they were treated with every consideration, and that no indignities were offered them.

The Overflowing Mississippi.

NEW ORLEANS, July 6.—Sarpy Crevasse is caving rapidly at the lower end and is now fully fifteen hundred feet wide. It is discharging as much water as the famous Nita, and the flood is now less than ten miles above New Orleans, being very close to the telephone station in the town of Kenner. The steady stream has at last told in the Illinois Central Railway, and five or six miles of track are two feet under water. The road is submerged for nearly twenty miles but the tracks are holding fast. The road will be used only for freight trains. Passenger service will be continued over the Louisville and Nashville track to Mileneburg at the lake side and be transferred by boat to Manchaie. The New Orleans and Southern is getting over its trouble having closed the Brahemian and Harlem crevasses. The Harlem plantation has a record, its two miles of front having had 16 crevasses. It took three weeks to close the last one owing to quicksand. There are several crevasses still open on the road but the water is falling and it is calculated that traffic will be resumed about the middle of the month.

Tennessee Pastime.

SHADY, Tenn., July 6.—Berg Short, a young man of this town, was driving with his sister a short distance from here, when they met Henderson, Dinkens and Lee Simmons, who were very drunk. Dinkens picked up a rock and hurled it at the occupants of the carriage. Short jumped from the vehicle with the words, "You can't throw rocks at my carriage, you d— scoundrel," and shot at Dinkens, who dropped. Simmons came staggering up and said, "You musn't shoot Henderson." He made an attempt to get closer to Short, but the latter wheeled around and with the smoking pistol in his hand fired at Simmons, saying "I'll kill you too." The ball entered the pit of his stomach and pentrated the body. Short escaped in his carriage. Dr. Wiley, who was summoned, said there was no hope for their recovery. Simmons is a married man with three or four children. Dinken is not married. They both have a reputation for being quiet and industrious men.

FROM NEW WESTMINSTER.

Arrested for Perjury—Reward Offered for Deserters from the Warspite.

NEW WESTMINSTER, July 6.—W. F. Dodge was arrested last night, charged with perjury. Dodge is agent at Westminster for the co-operative supply company. He was married three days ago at Nanaimo to a young woman. The warrant was sworn out by George Henley, of Nanaimo. Dodge gave evidence against Henley in the action taken against Henley by the co-operative supply company for alleged illegal opening and retention of mail belonging to the co-operative supply company. Henley has been remanded to the assizes. Dodge's young wife saw her husband in jail last night. She completely broke down. Dodge feels his position keenly.

A special meeting of the council will be held on Wednesday afternoon to consider the water rates.

Elon Burrlock, Thomas Sales and Henry O. Long, alleged deserters from the Warspite, are supposed to be in Westminster. A reward has been offered for their apprehension.

FROM THE CAPITAL.

The Redistribution Bill Passed—The Chinese Exclusion Bill.

OTTAWA, July 6.—The redistribution bill was read a third time by the Senate to-day and this afternoon they proceeded to discuss the criminal code. When they will get through no one can tell.

Mr. McLean's amendment in favor of a two cent railway passenger rate, created a lively discussion, and was lost by 128 to 20.

A deputation of members urged the Government to increase the duties on hops, pork and dried fruits.

Mr. Gordon made a speech in the House when moving the second reading of the Chinese restriction bill. He urged, in the interests of the workingmen of British Columbia, that Chinese immigration be further restricted. Dr. Christie strongly opposed the bill. The bill was read a second time.

Hon. Mr. Chapleau said that in committee he would propose to strike out the tonnage clause, leaving it as at present, one Chinese for each 50 tons. The clause respecting return certificates will be amended to prevent fraud. He proposed that each Chinaman landing in British Columbia furnish the burden of proof that he is the individual described in the certificate.

The question of indemnity, as far as the Liberal party is concerned, has been disposed of for the present session. A meeting of the party was held this morning, and it was unanimously decided to have nothing to do with the proposition which came from the Conservatives to raise the indemnity of members. This answer was conveyed to the Government at the close of the meeting to-day. The Premier asked Laurier to agree to an increase. The Leader of the Opposition, although opposed to an increase himself laid it before his followers, while the acceptance of an increase such as proposed was never contemplated by the opposition, still the idea of shortening the session was fully discussed at one or two informal meetings. As already said, to-day the answer was made to Premier Abbott's proposition, and it was that as far as the Liberals were concerned they unanimously refused to be a party to such a method in any way whatever. What the Government will do cannot yet be said. It is certain that they are pledged to their followers, to give them an increase.

The House sat for an hour and a half to-day with closed doors, discussing the indemnity question. On a proposition of Ferguson, of Leeds and Grenville, to allow members each session 10 days for indemnity in case of sickness, it was pretty well agreed that this would be done. In the meantime $8 per day is deducted if members are at home sick, but if at Ottawa sick it is allowed.

A Texas Picnic.

AMARILLO, Texas., July 6.—In an affray in a bar-room at Clarenden last night three men were killed. Two men named Green and Bell, notorious desperadoes, met in the bar-room about 9 o'clock and without wasting words proceeded to settle an old grudge. Five shots were exchanged and when the smoke cleared away both men were found dead on the floor. Deputy Inspector Grissom, of this place, who was in the saloon at the time, was wounded by one of the shots and died at midnight.

DIED.

HEYWOOD—At his residence, Fort street, Victoria, on the 5th instant, Joseph Heywood, a native of Yorkshire, England, aged 73 years.

The funeral will take place on Thursday morning at ten o'clock. Friends will please accept this intimation.
